

THREE OUTS TO WORKPLACE SECURITY

ANY OUT.

ANY ORDER.

You have three options ("outs") to prevail over an attacker. If you can safely Get Out, then leave. If it's safer to stay, then Lock Out. If an intruder invades your room, then it's time to Take Out (fight). There's no prescribed order. Do what you need to do, when you need to do it. www.StrategosIntl.com.

Lock Out means keeping the intruder outside your building. If the facility is breached, then keep the intruder out of your room. Never be satisfied with a locked door. Lock, layer, reinforce and turn off the lights. Simple door-reinforcing mechanisms are also available.

Get Out means putting space between you and the threat. If you can get away, do it. This means fleeing the building or an unsafe part of it. If you don't know where the shooter is, or if a shooter could be outside, it's better to Lock Out behind a locked. lavered and reinforced door.

LOCK OUT

Take Out means fighting for your life with whatever weapons (or improvised weapons) are at your disposal. These could include scissors, chairs and fire extinguishers. Attackers aren't used to being resisted. Stun them and stop them with whatever is available, even if that means throwing a shoe, purse or textbook. Lives depend on it.
